

YOUR VIEW

Greedy geezer vs. greedy young

EDITOR, GAZETTE:

Back off, Greedy Complainer ("Back off, greedy geezers," May 6).

It appears to me you need a psychiatrist and a psychologist. You never mentioned how old you were, but I take by your complaining you're very young, a young boy just out of his diapers. You never mentioned how much your take-home pay was per month.

Well, at least I have the courage and brains to come forth to tell you, my monthly income is $621. What is yours? Ten to one you greedy complainer, you won't tell.

You mentioned last January we all started paying more gasoline taxes. I never complained, but you did. You complained about liquor taxes, but I didn't, because I don't drink. You complained about higher cigarette taxes, I didn't and I smoke.

Now for the last complaint, from the greedy complainer. You must use the airlines frequently, probably to the Bahamas. I didn't complain about the tax, because I can't afford an airline. My rent is $280 a month. Now I have lights, gas, water, sewer and garbage to pay with what's left. Then I have to wait another month for this greedy geezer's Social Security check to come.

Now you greedy complainer, don't you feel bad about what you said in your editorial? What about the disabled who cannot work? I paid into Social Security 40-some years, and I never complained.

I'm curious, does your mother or dad getting close or drawing Social Security? Remember, one of these days you are going to be old; in other words, a senior citizen, or as you put it, a greedy geezer.

I don't think you will complain and say, back off greedy geezers, when you get to that age — if you make it to that age. You are a very self-centered greedy complainer. I think you are used to high-society living, and it hurts you to get cut down in wages, because you are use to the higher class of living. So greedy complainer, back off, grow up and face the facts of life. By the way, greedy complainer, my yearly wage is $7,300. What's your yearly wage, Greedy Complainer?

Greedy Geezer
Sterling